To Whom It May Concern:

It gives me great pleasure to write on behalf of Sanna Ljunggren.

To a filmmaker, Sanna Ljunggren is a unicorn, a rare find.

The first time I met Sanna I was immediately struck by her ambiguity, her performance holding me immobile. Her work ethic is exemplary, she is always early, always prepared. She is easily directed and delivers on every take. Sanna possesses the ability to inhabit her characters with a delicate balance of grace and fervor. She sinks into them while still managing to make it feel effortless. When performing, I cannot tear my eyes away from her.

I've since had the pleasure of working as well as directing Sanna in different productions, two of which went on to win awards, screening in multiple cities. One of those being Linger which I wrote and directed.

As an individual, her ability to put people immediately at ease makes her invaluable on sets. Simply put, she is a joy to be around. Her honesty is contagious, her humor intact, and her wonderment is never-ending. Sanna is perhaps the one person I know will be a perpetual student of life. She absorbs every detail possible, interprets it and releases it when necessary, making her a directors dream.

I wholeheartedly recommend Sanna Ljunggren, and further predict and promise that she will make her craft quite proud in the future.

Sincerely,

Molly Calliste - Writer/Director
